The image displays two rows of musical notation on a treble clef staff, each corresponding to a set of recorder diagrams. The first row shows notes C, D, E, F, F#, G, A, and Bb. The second row shows notes B, C', D', E', F', F#, and G'. Below each note, a recorder is shown with fingerings indicated by dots on the left and right sides. Brackets on the recorder diagrams group the fingers: the left hand (left side) uses fingers 1, 2, 3, and 4; the right hand (right side) uses fingers 1, 2, 3, and 4. The diagrams illustrate the specific finger placements for each note, including the use of the thumb and index finger for the Bb note.
